

Cable bridge at the village entrance

Article Overview

The Golden Bridge at Ba Na Hills is a 150-meter-long pedestrian cable-supported bridge accessible via multiple cable car routes from the French Village in Da Nang, Vietnam.

Overview

The Golden Bridge (also known as Golden Hands Bridge, Cau Vang, or Golden Palm Bridge) is a world-famous pedestrian bridge located in Ba Na Hills, Da Nang, Vietnam. It spans 150 meters in length, is 5 meters wide, and stands 23.3 meters above the ground at an elevation of 1,414 meters. The bridge is renowned for its unique design, featuring giant stone hands that appear to support the walkway, making it one of the most photographed and Instagrammable spots in Vietnam .

Access via Cable Car

Visitors typically reach the bridge using cable cars, which are the primary mode of transport from the base of Ba Na Hills or from the French Village:

- o Direct Cable Car: From Hoi An Station, a cable car goes straight to the Golden Bridge, though it may occasionally close for maintenance .
- o Via French Village: If the direct cable car is unavailable, visitors can take cable cars to L'Indochine Station or Taiga Station in the French Village. From there, a connecting cable car at Louvre Station leads to the Golden Bridge .
- o Other Routes: Additional cable cars from Thac Toc Tien Station or Champa Station at the foot of Ba Na Hills also reach the French Village, from which visitors can transfer to the bridge . Cable cars operate from 7:30 AM to 6:00 PM, with limited evening schedules. Tickets for adults and children above 1.4 meters are around 900,000-950,000 VND, which include access to the bridge and other attractions in Ba Na Hills .

Visitor Tips

- o Best Time to Visit: Early morning or late afternoon to avoid crowds and capture the best photos .
- o Time to Spend: Approximately 30 minutes on the bridge is sufficient for sightseeing and photography .
- o Accessibility: The bridge is wheelchair accessible .
- o Additional Attractions: Nearby attractions include the French Village, Fantasy Park, Linh Ung Pagoda, and the Debay Wine Cellar .
